Understanding Music Therapy

Wednesday, April 3, 2019

Art, music, dance and recreation may have a role in our daily lives for leisure or wellness, but as helping professionals it is important to understand how these disciplines can enhance clients' therapeutic experiences. Participants will both learn how music is used in a multitude of therapy settings and also experience music.

Allison Vovk, MA, MT-BC – Ms. Vovk is a Board Certified Music Therapist with Spectrum for Living in New Jersey where she leads large therapy groups as well as provides individual assessments and interventions. She supervises and trains university students. Her career has provided opportunities to work with clients across the lifespan. She is a member of the American Music Therapy Association and has been on the AMTA's Public Relations Committee for the Mid-Atlantic region since 2014.
